TO-NIGHT

THE GIRL FROM THUNDER MOUNTAIN ESSANAY DRAMA
IN TWO ACTS FEATURING RICHARD C. TRAVERS AND RUTH STONEHOUSE.

This is a story of the transformation of a ragged, ignorant Virginia mountain girl into a beautiful debutante of New York society. A young engineer, who holds the poor Southern white trash in contempt, fails to recognize the girl whom he met in the Virginia mountains after her year in New York. From this there develops a very pretty story which is well told by a competent cast.

COMMISSION WILL NOT SAVE WOODS

Colonel Nicholson Replies to Overtures of Congressman Beales. Price Regarded as Prohibitive. The Correspondence.

That the National Park Commission will make no effort to save the Hospital Woods, east of town, is shown by a letter received this morning from its chairman, Colonel John P. Nicholson to Congressman C. Wm. Beales. Colonel Nicholson states that "the present woods have no sentiment whatever" and no further steps will be taken to prevent H. A. Myers, who has bought the timber, from cutting it off the land. Mr. Myers has already started work and the trees will be felled as rapidly as possible.

Late Wednesday afternoon Mr. Beales sent to Colonel Nicholson the following telegram.

Gettysburg, Pa., April 14.
Colonel John P. Nicholson, Chairman, Philadelphia, Pa.

Would Commission consider the purchase of the Hospital Woods, as it now stands, at a price near $2100?
C. Wm. Beales, M. C.

The answer to the telegram came this morning in the following letter: Hon. C. Wm. Beales, M. C.

My dear Sir,
No appropriation was made to purchase land, and the price for the Hospital Woods is entirely too high, considering the number of acres. The real Hospital Woods, north of the pike to the Railroad, was cut down years ago, and the present woods have no sentiment whatever. This we have explained a number of times, and a blue print showing that can be obtained from Colonel Cope at the office.

Yours truly,
John P. Nicholson, Chairman.
The site of the woods is permanently marked by one of the monuments erected last year to show the location of all the field hospitals at Gettysburg at the time of the battle.

GEORGE H. DIEHL

Drove Cattle here from Ohio before the War.

George H. Diehl, an old time Chicago stock dealer, died at his home in that city last week. He was the eldest son of Joseph and Elizabeth Neely Diehl and was born at Canal Dover, Ohio, March 29, 1837, and went to Chicago in 1870.

He is well known to the older residents of Adams county having frequently accompanied his father here in ante-bellum days with bunches of cattle which they drove in from Ohio and disposed of here and at York.

Mr. Diehl leaves his wife and son and a daughter. One brother, Charles Diehl, of Cleveland, Ohio, survives. Rev. L. M. Gardner and Thomas G. Neely, Esq., of York Springs, are first cousins.

FUNERAL

Civil War Veteran Buried at Cone-wago Chapel.

The funeral of William A. Sanders at Edge Grove on Tuesday was largely attended. A requiem high mass was celebrated at Conewago Chapel by Rev. Fr. Whalen. Mr. Sanders formerly lived near Fairfield. He was a member of the Grand Army Post at Emmitsburg, having served in the 165th and 91st Pennsylvania regiments. The pall bearers were his grandsons and nephews.

TWO LICENSES

BILL STAIR IS FINALLY SIGNED

Popular Pitcher of Last Season will again be on the Mound for Gettysburg this Summer. Acceptance of Terms Received.

With the acceptance to-day of a Gettysburg contract by "Bill" Stair, the line-up of the Blue Ridge team was practically completed.

Manager Ira Plank this morning received a letter from Stair in which he stated that the Columbia Club of the South Atlantic League had given him the privilege of signing elsewhere if he so desired and that he was now ready to complete all details of coming to Gettysburg for this summer. Stair was with the town team for the last month of the 1914 season, made good, and established himself as a great favorite with the local fans. The news of his acceptance of Manager Plank's terms will be well received here.

Ira Plank also signed another player this week in the person of Captain Bigler, of the Juniata College team. Bigler is said to be one of the best men in minor college base ball circles. He is a "ten second man", and is especially valuable as a fielder, though he has also shown ability behind the bat and can be used as a catcher if necessary. Plank is also after another outfielder and, when he is secured, the list of local players will be completed.

There is no question about the strength of the town team for this summer and care of itself with the other five teams of the Blue Ridge League. The announcement of the working schedule will be eagerly awaited here and the opening of the season will show just how keenly Gettysburg is interested in organized base ball.

YORK SPRINGS

York Springs—There will be preaching services in the Presbyterian church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Miss Helen Hantz has returned home from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gardner, of Gettysburg.

Miss Margaret Day has returned home from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Robert Kessler.

Mrs. Reese Roberts, of Ambler, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Isaac Trostle.

George S. Bowers, of Harrisburg, was a York Springs visitor on Saturday.

H. R. Griest, of New York, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Griest over Sunday.

Raymond J. Miller, of near Hampton, has a flock of 125 hens and in four weeks they produced 162 dozen eggs.

Laban Wolf has been taken to the York Hospital for treatment.

WILLIAM N. SLENTZ

Man with no Enemies Dies in Waynesboro.

William N. Slentz, a native of Adams County, died Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock at his home in Waynesboro, from asthma, aged 73 years and 15 days. He moved to Waynesboro fifty years ago.

The Herald, of that place, says: "He was a genial gentleman and had a host of friends, with no enemies". The funeral will be held at two o'clock Friday afternoon.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Fifty One Pupils at New Institution in the Valley.

Rev. P. F. Sullivan, pastor of St. Ignatius' church, has organized a school. The session, from 9 to 12 noon, is held in the new hall. There is an attendance of 51 pupils, some of the children coming quite a distance. The assistants are Eugene Strassbaugh and Miss Rosalie A. Cole. The school will be open three months.

CONGREGATION IS 175 YEARS OLD

Anniversary of Presbyterian Church Fittingly Celebrated. Historical Sketches Feature Evening Meeting. Interesting Career.

Before an audience which filled the auditorium, exercises commemorating the completion of 175 years of existence and activity were held in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening. Historical sketches bringing the congregation from its earliest organization in 1740 to the present day were recited and the meeting was of the greatest interest, not only to the members but to the community in general.

Rev. F. E. Taylor, pastor of the church, had compiled the history of the congregation and told first of its organization in 1740, and the erection seven years later of their first church at what is now Black's graveyard where several of the former pastors are buried. The various experiences through which the congregation passed until April 1813 were told briefly, Gettysburg being selected for their place of meeting at that time.

For three years the congregation worshiped in other churches and the Court House, and in 1816 built a church where the plant of the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company now stands. On December 14, 1834, said Rev. Mr. Taylor, the first Sunday School was organized. Two years later the church building was found to be unsafe. For the next five years the congregation worshiped in the Associate Reformed church and did not occupy their new building on the present site until 1842.

Dissension arose, according to Rev. Mr. Taylor's historical sketch, in 1859 upon the resignation of Rev. Mr. Van Wyck as pastor, for all of his elders resigned with him. A committee of Presbytery re-organized the congregation and it was then that the name of the Upper Marsh Creek Church was dropped for that of the Presbyterian Church of Gettysburg. In 1878 the Sunday School room was added, and in 1884 the church was renovated both during the pastorate of Dr. Demarest. The United Presbyterian members joined this church in 1894.

Those are but a few of the hundreds of facts contained in the sketch prepared by Mr. Taylor and read on Wednesday evening. He included brief biographical sketches of the various pastors, told of each one's individual achievements and paid particularly high tribute to several of them. Letters from former pastors were read and for an hour the minister entertained most delightfully his large audience.

Mrs. S. M. Stewart had the other paper of the evening and told briefly of the conduct of the hospital in the church during and following the battle. She told how all the churches in the town together with the High Street school building were converted into hospitals, how boards were laid across the backs of the pews in the Presbyterian church to hold the wounded, and how residents of town took food to the Barr home nearby to have it prepared for the soldiers. Mrs. Stewart commented on the great courage displayed by the suffering men, and in closing told of the gentlemanly character of the men of both armies. For days, she said, she went between her home and the improvised hospitals, and at no time was anything but the most respectful treatment accorded, a condition which is not prevailing now in Europe.

Rev. James McConaughy, a former member of the congregation, made the concluding address of the evening. The music included a solo by Mrs. Zinn; a male quartet, and the singing by the congregation of a hymn composed for the occasion by Miss Julia H. Johnston, of Peoria, daughter of a former pastor of the church.

The lay delegates elected by Presbytery to the meeting of the General Assembly were J. U. Neely, of Lower Marsh Creek; J. H. Blair, of Harrisburg; and Judge Seibert, New Bloomfield. The alternates were George C. Glenn, Lebanon; Samuel W. Fleming, Harrisburg; and R. S. McDowell, Mercersburg.

The members of Presbytery have nearly all returned to their homes. Wednesday afternoon they enjoyed automobile trips over the battlefield.

IMPROVE SYSTEM AT POST OFFICE

Old Plan of Allowing All Employees to Answer Calls and Handle Cash at Various Windows is Abolished. New Arrangement.

By the addition of an extra clerk at the Gettysburg post office, allowed by a recent order of the Department at Washington, Postmaster Duncan has been enabled to establish a system of operation which will fix immediately the responsibility for any losses or mistakes in the financial accounts of the employees.

Under the old system any employee of the office could respond to a call at the stamp or general delivery window. The stamp supply and cash were available to any one, whether money order clerk, stamp clerk, distributing clerk, or assistant postmaster. Should any shortage occur during the day, or should the cash account be "long", there was practically no way to fix the responsibility. During the day eight or ten men might have occasion to handle the cash and supplies.

Under the new system Mr. Duncan has placed two clerks in sole charge of the general delivery and stamp windows. F. Mark Bream is regular and Miss Barr is acting as sub-clerk pending the filling of a temporary vacancy. Each has their own separate supply of stamps and cash, and neither has access to that of the other. Every day, $500 worth of cash and change is placed in the hands of each and there is no difficulty in balancing in the evening. In the event of any shortage or amount over, the mistake is at once fixed for no one else is allowed at the window.

At the money order and registry department the same system is followed. George P. Black and C. K. Gilbert operating under the same plan there, and neither working with the other's supply.

In addition to improving the service by this means it is also giving to the handling of the mails several clerks who devote their entire time to that portion of the work, and the new arrangement is proving a great success in every particular.

FOR NEW EQUIPMENT

Firemen again Consider Proposition of Apparatus.

The fire company renewed their pledge of $500 toward the purchase of new apparatus, at their meeting Wednesday night. Voluntary subscriptions of a like amount were reported to be on hand. A. B. Plank, Moses Bair, and E. C. Shriver will solicit further subscriptions, and a food sale is to be held for the same purpose, this committee having it in charge. R. H. Long, Meader Williams, John Hartman, C. A. Robinson, and H. E. Smiley.

MANY ATTENDED

Pastor Remembered by Former Prisoners at Funeral.

Representatives of his congregations at Chambersburg and Middleburg attended the services for Rev. Howard A. Stauffer which were held in York on Wednesday. The body was brought to Gettysburg this morning on the Western Maryland and interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery. Among those who attended were the Druid fraternity of which he was a member.

BURGESS EICHOLTZ

New Mayor Appointed by Court on Request of Council.

In compliance with the request of the town council, Judge Swope on Wednesday named James W. Eicholtz to fill the unexpired term of Burgess Raymond, resigned. Mr. Eicholtz has shown in former years his ability to handle this office to the entire satisfaction of the people of the town.

Fortified Tires

Span the Way from Trouble

Goodyear tires have bridged the way for countless men to less trouble and tax. And those men, by their endorsement, brought our last year's output up to 1,479,883 tires.

Why do you suppose that Goodyear holds top place—you who use other tires? They have held that place for years, outselling any other.

The only reason, as you must know, is that Goodyears average best. And that's how they are bound to win you.

The Super-Tire

They are not trouble-proof. Mishaps come to them, misuse affects them, much like other tires.

But Goodyears are Fortified Tires. They protect you in five ways employed by no other maker. They combat five major troubles in unique ways, exclusive to Fortified Tires. These five extra features cost us fortunes. One alone—our "On-Air" cure—costs us $450,000 yearly. But they save Goodyear users millions of dollars yearly. They avoid countless troubles for them.

Lower Prices

On February 1st we made another big reduction. That makes three in two years, totaling 45 per cent. We are giving you, through mammoth production, the best tire value ever known.

Please prove this, for your own sake, by the tire itself. The following Goodyear Service Stations will supply you:

RUSSIANS STORM HUNGARIAN HILLS

Austrians Driven From Position After 12-Hour Battle.

INVADERS ARE NEAR UZSOK

Attacks and Counter Attacks Are So Frequent That Both Sides Appear to Be on the Offensive.

London, April 15.—Dispatches from Lemberg, via Petrograd, say that in a desperate attack by the Russians on the right flank of the Austrians position at Mezolaborcz, on the Hungarian side of the East Beskian mountains and about fifty miles south of Przemyśl, the Austrians were forced, after a battle lasting twelve hours to make a precipitate retreat.

The whole main crest in this district, which the Austrians had considered to be impregnable, now is in the hands of the Russians.

The main body of the Austrian army then moved on Rostoka, where they found the Russians prepared in a strong defensive position, and they again were repulsed. Another attack made by the Austrians in the southern district of Uzsook and Veretzim met with a similar check, the Russians occupying a position three miles from Uzsook.

The left flank of this Austrian army, under command of Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, is being gradually exposed by the Russian advances toward Bartfeld and Gumnino.

Teuton Allies Fighting Stubbornly.

Petrograd, April 15.—Austro-German forces which still hold isolated summits of the Carpathians are contesting stubbornly every foot of the Russian advances along the front from Bartfeld to Stry. This front runs almost due east and west for 115 miles. Bartfeld is in northern Hungary and Stry is eastern Galicia, to the south of Lemberg.

Attacks and counter attacks follow with such rapidity that both sides may be said to be taking the offensive simultaneously. The shocks are resulting in unusually heavy casualties, with only a slight change in the comparative positions of the opposing forces.

Uzsook, near the pass of that name, still remains in the possession of the Austrians, but the Russians have captured the heights to the northward, coming within three miles of the railroad station, and their occupation of the town itself is expected. The Austrians are vigorously repeating their efforts to penetrate from Bukovina into Russian territory in the direction of Chotin.

The Russians characterize this move as a device on the part of the Austrians for drawing Russian troops from the Carpathians. They assert that the Austrians have been unable to bring up sufficient reinforcements to check the Russian advance, and that the only alternative for the Austrians is to divert part of the Russian forces in other directions.

FUMSTON HURRIES TO BORDER

General Reports Mexican Bullets Striking in Brownsville.

Washington, April 15.—Major General Frederick Funston, commanding the American forces on the Mexican border, is on the way from San Antonio to take personal charge of the situation at Brownsville, which has become threatening again in consequence of the falling of Mexican bullets into American territory.

Reporting to the war department, General Funston said that although bullets struck the Brownsville side in the fighting on Tuesday, there were no casualties. The general is accompanied to Brownsville by Colonel Chase W. Kennedy, his chief of staff.

Colonel Blockson, at Brownsville, in a report forwarded by General Funston, said the hostilities on Tuesday extended from half a mile in front of the right flank of Carranza's trenches around Matamoros to about a mile from the Brownsville pumping station. It was near the pumping station that the bullets fell on the American side.

Evangeline Booth Faints.

Charleston, W. Va., April 15.—It became known that Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, collapsed in her hotel here after a lecture. Her physician said her condition was not dangerous, and it was probable she would leave for her home in New York at once.

Four-Year-Old Boy Shoots Baby.

Lebanon, Pa., April 15.—George Doll, the four-year-old son of Albert Doll, an engineer at the Cornwall ore mines, found a revolver under a bed, and while playing with it the weapon was discharged, the ball entering the abdomen of his nine-months-old baby sister Mary, killing her instantly.

Diver Walks on Top of F-4.

Honolulu, April 15.—Chief Gunner's Mate Frank Crilly went 288 feet under water here and walked along the top of the submarine F-4, which disappeared March 25. The depth is said by naval officers to be a world's diving record.

BAN ON LIQUOR IN PARLIAMENT

Kitchen Committee Prohibits Sale of Intoxicants.

London, April 15.—England took the first official step in the direction of prohibition when the kitchen committee of the house of commons passed a resolution prohibiting the sale of all intoxicating liquors in any part of the house.

The kitchen committee, which consists exclusively of members of parliament, is presided over by one who is largely interested in brewery property and includes others, specially chosen in other days, as connoisseurs in wines and spirits.

The feeling of the house at large, however, was so strongly in favor of showing an example to the country that the drink experts on the committee, whatever their feelings, had no option but to submit.

However, a more cheerful tone asserted itself when some astute press man pointed out that the kitchen committee only prohibited the sale of intoxicants and not their consumption.

The result of this discovery was that private lockers in the press room went to a premium. It is expected the kitchen committee will amend its order covering consumption as well as sale.

FIND GIRL'S BODY IN DAM

Police Are Searching For Person Who Spread Fake Story.

Hazleton, Pa., April 15.—Floating on the surface of Sugar Loaf dam, near this city, the body of Mary Pascuccio, twenty-four years old, was found by school children.

On March 6 she disappeared from her home in Hazleton, and about a week later the police dropped their search when told by a friend of the girl that word had come from her saying she had gone to West Virginia and married. The police are endeavoring to find the person who furnished this information.

The girl was employed at an industrial plant in Hazleton, and prior to March 6 had been morose because of her failure to be promoted and obtain better wages. She had often threatened suicide, but the false news from West Virginia has surrounded the case with mystery. The police during the search for the girl dragged the bed of the dam.

ZEPPELIN RAID OVER ENGLAND

Explosives Fall on Outskirts of Northumberland Town.

London, April 15.—A German Zeppelin airship passed over Blyth, on the North sea, in Northumberland county, dropping bombs, says a dispatch to the Central News from Blyth. The bombs, it is added, fell in the outskirts of the town.

Mother Burned Trying to Save Girl. Shamokin, Pa., April 15.—Helen Boneky was probably fatally burned when her dress caught fire as she was playing around a bonfire on the way from school. She started to run for home and was met by her mother, who was badly burned trying to extinguish the flames. The girl is not expected to recover.

Man Killed by Hammer.

Sunbury, Pa., April 15.—F. C. Schoppe, married and the father of six children, was killed when John Gaugler, swinging a hammer at the Pennsylvania railroad car shops, missed a bolt he was aiming at and struck Schoppe on the head, fracturing his skull.

INCREASE THE RHINE DEFENCES

Germans Are Reconstructing Great Fortress.

PREPARE TO FLOOD COUNTRY

Kaiser Fears a General French Advance and Is Rushing Reinforcements to Metz.

Basle, Switzerland, April 15.—The German military authorities, according to advices reaching this city, are reconstructing the formidable fortress at Istein, five miles from here, on the Rhine.

The barracks inside the fortress have been pulled down and extensive underground barracks to take their place have been dug and quarried out of the earth.

The river Rhine is being dammed so that when certain sluice gates are closed wide stretches of the surrounding country can be flooded.

Observers in Basle are expressing the opinion that these preparations are in anticipation of a French offensive being successful.

Germans Fear General Advance.

London, April 15.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Amsterdam says that the Germans are moving a considerable reinforcement to the Thionville region and to Metz. The Germans are declared to fear a general French advance in that sector where the recent attacks have wrested important positions from the Kaiser's troops and tightened the grip which General Joffre has been fastening on the salient of St. Mihiel.

The Amsterdam dispatch even declares that the German general staff is considering a withdrawal from St. Mihiel in consequence of the French pressure.

Such a retreat would be a serious blow to the Kaiser's forces, in the opinion of military experts. The St. Mihiel salient has long been a thorn in the side of the French, one that has cost them much in men and energy, and that has been the one real weakness in the barrier they have thrown up from the sea to the Swiss boundary.

Its abandonment would mean that Germany had practically given up all hope of another "drive to Paris." It is declared, and it would surely release large French forces for use elsewhere.

The experts believe that the post, which has been so stubbornly defended that one general is said to have declared he would sacrifice 100,000 men to hold it, would never be abandoned if Germany could provide men for its defense without fatally weakening some other part of her battle line.

GERMANY IS AFTER BETHLEHEM STEEL

Need of Foreign Munition Plant is Suggested.

Easton, Pa., April 15.—German capital is reaching across the seas and influencing the stock market in Bethlehem Steel, according to inside information that the owners of the plant and Wall street are said to possess.

This is given as another reason for the wide fluctuations which have characterized the Schwab stock.

Germany, it is suggested, must have some foreign source of munitions to keep herself supplied. Experts who have followed the course of the war are said to believe that through the banking institutions of this country allied with Germany steps are being taken for war supplies to be made for her at the Bethlehem Steel works.

Should the Germans succeed in this alleged effort at control, it probably would mean, it is suggested further, the cancellation of all war orders the allies might place.

Some brokers in Wall street are inclined to favor this explanation of the constant fluctuation in Bethlehem Steel stock.

Boy, Angry, Kills Mother.

Pittsburgh, Ky., April 15.—Mrs. Mack Thomas was shot to death by her thirteen-year-old son because she forbade him to take his playthings out of doors. The child stole behind her with a shotgun and fired, killing his mother instantly.

Wilson Proclaims Holiday.

Washington, April 15.—Complying with requests from many patriotic societies, President Wilson announced a holiday for all executive branches to-day, the anniversary of Lincoln's death. All national banks will also be closed.

3 WEEKS TO REPAIR WILHELM

Boiler Tubes Worn Out and Cannot Be Supplied at Newport News.

Newport News, Va., April 15.—The German commerce raider Kronprinz Wilhelm, it was learned, is in need of boiler tubes, which cannot be supplied at this port. To obtain and install the tubes, it is said, would require at least three weeks.

Authorization to take the Wilhelm into drydock has been received from Washington, but the ship must be trimmed before she can be moved, and it is probable that she will not dock before Friday.

Three hundred additional tons of coal were allowed the cruiser for port purposes and to lowering her bow. Experts say she is taking so much water astern as to endanger her rudder and propellers.

Rear Admiral Beatty, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, sent word that the naval examining board probably would not inspect the Wilhelm until the navy department examined Captain Thierfelder's requests for repairs.

If Captain Thierfelder attempts to take the cruiser to sea again he will be forced to run the gauntlet of alert and superior warships, which have arrived at the capes.

JAPANESE MINE MEXICAN WATERS

Have Big Camp on Shore in Lower California.

Los Angeles, April 15.—Three Japanese warships under command of Admiral Nakayama, manned altogether by about 4000 men, were recently in Turf bay, Lower California (Mexico), standing by the stranded Japanese cruiser Asama, according to a staff correspondent of the Los Angeles Times, who has just returned from a trip of investigation.

Turtle bay is 409 miles south of San Diego, Cal., and is said to be the best harbor north of Magdalena bay, the west coast rendezvous of the United States navy.

No effort is being made to float the Asama, which the correspondent says is lying in soft mud at the entrance to the harbor.

This was explained, he said, by Japanese officers, who declared they were awaiting the arrival of a great crane ship. Meanwhile, the correspondent asserted, Turtle bay has been mined by the Japanese, ammunition has been landed and a large camp established ashore. Preparations also were made, he added, to land guns from the Asama.

The mines were laid in the harbor, the correspondent said he was told, as an additional precaution against attack by German naval vessels.

ALLENTOWN MAN'S BATH

It Gets Him Into Court, But He Is Vindicated by Jury.

Allentown, Pa., April 15.—Hundreds of women crowded the Allentown court house for the trial of Lewis Yander, accused by Mrs. Alice Reichel, his next-door neighbor, of walking around naked in his house.

Mrs. Reichel, a new bride, and her sister testified they were shocked. Yander in his defense declared that he came home from the cement plant, where he is employed, in need of a bath, and proceeded with his ablutions unconscious of the fact that his pretty neighbors were observing him in his bathroom. He was acquitted.

MOVIE BILLS PASS SENATE

Snyder Proposal Also Believed in Picture Houses' Interests.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 15.—The senate passed two of the four bills amending the Philadelphia building laws relative to the moving picture houses. The other two were not taken up because they had not been printed.

Senator Snyder, of Schuylkill, offered a repealer which, if passed, would make it unnecessary for Philadelphia theaters to have licenses before putting on shows of any sort. It is understood that the repealer would be particularly pleasing to the great number of moving picture houses in that city.

Russian Moonshiners Killed.

Petrograd, April 15.—Fifteen persons were killed by an explosion in an illicit alcohol distillery at Volkova, a suburb of this city. Serious damage was caused by the fire which followed the explosion.

SEES PEACE HOPE IN WOMEN'S WORK

Miss Jane Addams Talks of Hague Conference.

MAY NOT END WAR AT ONCE

But She Is Certain, She Says, That Meeting Will Have Great Influence in Taking Settlement Out of Hands of Diplomats and Making it a Lasting One.

"We are not so foolish as to expect to end the war; still we shall accomplish something," said Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, just before sailing from New York at the head of the delegation of American women to the international congress of women called by the women of Holland to meet in The Hague April 28 to 30.

"We do not expect to end the war," continued Miss Addams. "We have not much hope that our meeting will have immediate effect upon the present situation, but we do believe that, as women, as mothers of men and soldiers, we are in position to meet without bias and formulate plans for the settlement of the present international troubles when the time comes to consider terms of peace."

The present system of diplomacy has failed. It has plunged the world into a war the like of which it never saw before, and it has done this in the infancy of the feminist movement. Now is the time for women to assert themselves and attempt to bring about a settlement that will be a lasting settlement if it is possible to do so.

"This meeting at The Hague is called by no organization; it is a spontaneous movement upon the part of the women of all nations. It will be sponsored by no organization of women, and it will have no official character. For men to talk peace opens the way to charges of cowardice; to give the conference any official standing would make it impossible."

Sees Possible Results.

"It may have one of three results:

"It may be dangerous, for things may be said which should not be said, and this is a thing that must be guarded against."

"It may be futile, but we hope it will not."

"And it may be productive of results. We hope it may. But we have no idea of what we may do."

"As is usual with such meetings in Europe, the program has been mapped out. What we must do is to ascertain what is necessary for lasting peace, something the diplomats evidently have not discovered."

"If Germany must have North sea ports, if Russia must have a warm water outlet, let us decide what must be done to bring about lasting peace. Then we shall organize so that when the time comes to make peace we women may have some influence in seeing to it that the terms are such that the peace is a lasting one and not of the makeshift kind that will leave the world open to the possibility of a recurrence of the present terrible conflict."

"If the warring nations do not agree to accept a plan for the establishment of a concert of nations then we must ask them to accept something else, but we must have something to substitute for the present policy of creating alliances for the maintenance of the balance of power."

Favors Washington Platform.

"The platform adopted by the Woman's Peace party in Washington in January provides for such a 'concert of nations.' It provides that no province shall be transferred without a plebiscite of its inhabitants; that indemnities shall not be assessed save where international law has been violated; that the people shall ratify treaties of alliance. It suggests an international court, an international congress, with legislative powers over international affairs, and an international police force."

"It provides for the formation of a 'league of peace,' national disarmament, nationalization of armament factories, protection of private property at sea, removal of the economic causes of war and extension of suffrage to women as a means to all these things."

"But we are not so sanguine as to imagine that all these things may come to pass now or soon. We only hope that by attending a meeting of this kind, wholly spontaneous, we may be able to accomplish things that could not be accomplished by men."

"We meet as women, not as representatives of any interest or state nor as citizens of any state, but simply as women citizens of the world, in the hope that when the time comes to discuss peace we may have influence enough to bring about the adoption of terms that will mean real peace, not merely an interim to be followed by another such outbreak as is now convulsing the world."

Held Funeral For Wrong Woman.

During the funeral services for Mrs. Clara C. Granlund at New Haven, Conn., a friend went to take a last look at the body before the casket was closed. The woman fell back with a cry. The body was not that of her friend. Mrs. Granlund was found alive and well in an institution, where an error was made when Mrs. John F. Heene of Orange, N. J., died.

LACK OF FISH HITS ALL EUROPE HARD

North Sea Trawling Paralyzed by War Zone Raiders.

PINCH OF SCARCITY IS FELT

Annual Catch of Million and a Quarter Tons of Sea Food For Rich and Poor Suddenly Cut Off Adds to Perils of Starvation, Which Even in Neutral Countries Are Feared.

"With its war zones and counter-war zones, its mined areas, its hostile fleets and its heavily defended shores, the North sea in a few months has been transformed from one of the richest food producing areas in Christendom into a region upon whose mastery may depend the starvation of one of the other of two of the mightiest nations of the earth."

The above statement appears in the current issue of the National Geographic Magazine, the official organ of the National Geographic society. The nations referred to are not named, but it is apparent that the countries referred to are England and Germany.

The article, which is unsigned, points out that in times of peace "no other like area has given to humanity such rich supplies of food" as has the North sea. There more than in any other known region of the oceans, it adds, the food fishes congregate.

The fish food output of the North sea in the year preceding the present war totaled 1,250,000 tons.

Food of Rich and Poor.

"Today," says the article, "a hundred thousand Englishmen who manned the steam trawl, the drifter and the sailing boat; tens of thousands of Germans who vied with them in their work; Belgians, the French, the Dutch, the Danes and the Scandinavians, who also helped exploit the North sea fisheries—all of these are largely out of jobs. Fishing boats now sweep the sea for mines instead of seeking it for fish."

"Germany cannot look to the Baltic for any large supply of fish to replace her former supplies from the North sea, for the waters of that sea are poor producing grounds. The total annual yield there is only about a tenth as great as that of the North sea, and Germany's share of this is in normal times very small."

"Great Britain's North sea fisheries represent nearly two-thirds of the total catch there and are more than eight times as large as those of Germany."

"In the North sea three-fifths of the total catch are herring; haddock takes second place, constituting 11 per cent of the total; cod comes third, with 8.5 per cent, and the plaice fourth, with 4.5 per cent of the total catch. In the matter of values the ratio is somewhat different from that of weights. Constituting 62.7 per cent of the weight of the season's catch, the herring accounts for only 45.4 per cent of its value."

"The vast proportion of the fish consumed in Europe is salt fish. The fresh fish go to the tables of the rich, while the herring and other salted varieties are consumed principally by the masses. The result is that when the pinch in the fish supply began to come it visited the homes of the well to do first. All of the countries at war probably have enough salt fish in their warehouses to tide over a considerable period, but if the war keeps up this reserve must disappear."

"Not only do the nations at war feel the pinch of the fish shortage caused by the war, but neutral nations as well. Holland feels it sorely from a production standpoint, as do also Sweden, Norway and Denmark. On the other hand, it hits Switzerland more from a consumption standpoint. That country normally buys nearly $1,000,000 worth of fish from the countries that border the North sea."

Hard to Realize Here.

"We in America, where fish forms such a minor part of our daily diet and where so many of the fish that we eat are grown in our rivers and bays, under a great American originated system of fish culture, find it hard to realize how serious in their proportions and how far-reaching in their consequences are the results of the practical closing down of the fisheries of the North sea."

"Europe has depended very much upon these fisheries for fish supplies. More than half of all the fish produced on all the fishing grounds operated by Europeans are caught within the limited territory that constitutes the North sea fishing grounds. How much they are depended upon is shown by the fact that Great Britain annually absorbs 500,000 tons of North sea fish. That means twenty-two pounds per capita. And, while this is small in proportion to her per capita meat consumption of 119 pounds, yet it is that margin which represents the difference between a bounteous plenty and positive hunger unless other foods can be secured to take its place."

"The same condition applies to Germany. Not only has that country heretofore used all of its own catch, but has annually imported more than 1,500,000 barrels from other countries around the North sea. The United Kingdom and Germany are the two greatest meat eating nations of the six leading ones now at war, Germany's per capita consumption being 113 pounds."

No Place to Play

Plenty of room for dives and dens. Glitter and glare and sin. Plenty of room for prison pens—Gather the criminals in. But never a place for the kids to race—No; never a place to play!

Plenty of room for schools and halls. Plenty of room for art, ill. Plenty of room for teas and balls. Platform, stage and mart. Proud is the city—highly a place. For many a lad today. But she's more than blind if she fails to find.

A place for the boys to play.

Give them a chance for innocent sport. Give them a chance for fun. Better playground plot than a court. And all when the harm is done. Give them a chance. If you stint them now. Tomorrow you'll have to pay A larger bill for a darker day. So give them a place to play. —Dennis A. McCarthy in New Orleans Times-Picayune.

DENY BETSY ROSS DESIGNED U. S. FLAG.

Historical Societies Oppose Plan For Monument on Grave.

The introduction of a bill in the Pennsylvania legislature providing $25,000 for the erection of a monument over the grave of Betsy Ross, in Mount Moriah cemetery, Philadelphia, as the maker of the first United States flag, has aroused adverse comment among members of historical and patriotic hereditary organizations, who declare that the story of Betsy Ross is too obscure to receive the formal stamp of approval by the state.

Such official recognition also, they assert, will tend to substantiate the belief by many that Betsy Ross actually designed the stars and stripes, and thus cause further inaccuracies in or der to perpetuate "a merely popular and picturesque tradition of American history."

Even the story of the house on Arch street, which is believed by many to have been the home of Betsy Ross and the legend that the first flag was made there, is not taken seriously by them.

There are no deeds on record, they say, to show that the house now designated as "the birthplace of Old Glory" is authentic.

"Betsy Ross was a seamstress in the employ of the government during the Revolution, making uniforms and standards," said an officer of one of the societies. "It is possible she may have sewed the flags together; but, as to the story that Betsy Ross actually designed the stars and stripes, nothing could be more ridiculous."

DISCOVERS "THIRD SEX" HERE

Paris Editor Blames Education of American Women.

Education among the women of America is producing a third sex, Boston society people are being told by Robert Hughes Le Roux, editor of Le Matin, Paris, who is visiting that city with his American wife, formerly Mrs. John Van Vorst, sister-in-law of Marie Van Vorst, the novelist.

"I have made a particular study of American women students," says M. Le Roux, "and found that the tendency is to produce a nonproductive sex."

"The business woman is also a member of the third sex. She demands an equality with men and the privileges chivalrous men have bestowed on women as well."

"The chief trouble lies with the education of American women. Women were not meant by nature for such education."

"In France we recognize but one vocation for a woman—marriage. The Frenchwomen prefer being loved to being worshiped."

LEAVES FRIEND $10,000.00.

Miss Garrett Bequeaths Estate to Miss Thomas Unconditionally.

Practically the whole of her $10,000.00 was left by Miss Mary Elizabeth Garrett of Baltimore, daughter of John W. Garrett, late president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, to her friend, Miss Mary Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr college.

Absolutely no condition is attached to the bequest, and it will not be contested. In her will Miss Garrett refers to the fact that she and Miss Thomas had been closely associated in work for the higher education of women, and says she is confident that Miss Thomas will make appropriate and wise use of the legacy, that her sympathy with and confidence in Miss Thomas' judgment and wisdom were her motives in making her friend the residuary legatee.

Had Miss Garrett survived her friend the money would have gone to Johns Hopkins university.

GROW FOOD IN CITY PARKS.

Austrians Get Emperor's Order to Plow Up Greensward.

From Vienna comes information that the Emperor Francis Joseph has issued an order to the authorities that vegetable gardens are to be grown in every available space in the city.

The public parks and greens, including also the famous Prater, the emperor's personal property, will be utilized and planting will begin as soon as the turf is plowed up and the ground is suitable for cultivation. Thus all the greens in the Austrian capital will take on the appearance of vegetable gardens.

Trade With French Oceania.

America sends French Oceania more than 47 per cent of its imports, and receives in return a trifle over 50 per cent of its exports.

NEW POSTAL ORDER

Better Parcel Post Arrangement for the Routes.

Notice of an important ruling of the postmaster general, facilitating the use of parcel post insurance and C. O. D. mailing in rural districts, has been received by Adams County postmasters.

Under this order rural carriers are commissioned to accept packages given them for insurance or collection on delivery, issuing coupon receipts on the spot. Heretofore the carriers have had to take such parcel to the office from which they served patrons, delivering the receipts the following day.

Rural carriers, the new order provides, shall be equipped with parcel post scales, maps and guides, and with supplies of insurance and C. O. D. tags. Each carrier shall be provided with a series of numbers and when it is desired by a patron to insure a parcel or mail it C. O. D., the carrier shall provide a tag and require the sender to fill out the tag in ink or with indelible pencil.

When desired by the patrons, insurance or C. O. D. tags may be left in the mail box by the carrier to be properly filled out and attached to parcels. On succeeding trips parcels bearing such tags will be accepted, if sufficient postage is left in the box. If such parcels appear to be packed and indorsed in accordance with the postal regulations they may be accepted at the sender's risk, since the carrier would be unable to make inquiry in regard to the manner of packing, and the articles inclosed. However, such inquiry will be made when parcels are accepted direct from patrons.

The required amount of postage and fee is to be affixed in stamps to the parcel, and it is to be delivered at the office with the tag properly filled out and attached. If perishable or fragile articles are inclosed, a notation is to be made by the carrier in order that the parcel may be properly indorsed at the office before dispatch.

SYNOPSIS.

Christopher Bellevue, a tenderfoot, starts for the Klondike in a gold rush and pluckily works at the back-breaking toil of packing freight.

He meets a beautiful girl, Joy Gastell, deserts his own party, and he and Shorty, a new acquaintance, hire out to two wealthy prospectors. Joy has nicknamed him "Smoke."

Smoke and Shorty befriend a man named Breck and nearly perish in attempting to cross Lake LeGeorge because of the uselessness of their employers.

Smoke and Shorty take command by force and get through to Dawson City, where they are discharged. On Breck's tip they stampede for Squaw creek.

CHAPTER V.

The Stampede to Squaw Creek.

TWO months after Smoke Bellevue and Shorty went after moose for a grubstake they were back in the Klondike saloon at Dawson. The hunting was done, the meat hauled in and sold for $2.50 a pound, and between them they possessed $3,000 in gold dust and a good team of dogs. They had played in luck. Despite the fact that the gold rush had driven the game a hundred miles or more into the mountains, they had within half that distance bagged four moose in a narrow canyon.

The mystery of the strayed animals was no greater than the luck of their killers, for within the day four famished Indian families, reporting no game in three days' journey back, camped beside them. Meat was traded for starving dogs, and after a week of feeding Smoke and Shorty harnessed the animals and began freighting the meat to the eager Dawson market. The problem of the two men now was to turn their gold dust into food. The current price for flour and beans was $1.50 a pound, but the difficulty was to find a seller. Dawson was in the throes of famine. Hundreds of men, with money, but no food, had been compelled to leave the country.

Smoke met Shorty in the warm saloon and found the latter jubilant. "Life ain't no pumpkin without whiskey an' sweetenin'," was Shorty's greeting as he pulled lumps of ice from his thawing mustache and hung them rattling on to the floor. "An' I sure just got eighteen pounds of that same sweetenin'." The geese only charged $3 a pound for it. What luck did you have?

"I, too, have not been idle," Smoke answered with pride. "I bought fifty pounds of flour. And there's a man up on Adam creek who says he'll let me have fifty pounds more tomorrow."

"Great! We'll sure live till the river opens. Come on an' have a drink. I just got to celebrate them eighteen pounds of sweetenin'."

Several minutes later, as he weighed in on the gold scales for the drinks, he gave a start of recollection.

"I plumb forgot that man I was to meet in the Tivoli. He's got some spotted bacon he'll sell for a dollar an' a half a pound. We can feed it to the dogs. So long."

Hardly had Shorty left the place when a fur clad man entered through the double storm doors. His face lighted at sight of Smoke, who recognized him as Breck, the man whose boat they had run through the Box canyon and the White Horse rapids.

"I heard you were in town," Breck said hurriedly. "Been looking for you for half an hour. Come outside; I want to talk with you."

As they emerged Smoke drew off one mitten, lighted a match and glanced at the thermometer that hung beside the door. He remitted his naked hand hastily, as if the frost had burned him.

"What did it say?" Breck asked. "Sixty below. An hour ago it was only 52. Don't tell me it's a stampede. It is!" Breck whispered back cautiously. "You know Squaw creek empties in on the other side the Yukon, thirty miles up?"

"Nothing doing there," was Smoke's judgment. "It was prospected years ago."

"So were all the other rich creeks. Listen! It's big. Only eight to twenty feet to bedrock. There won't be a claim that doesn't run to half a million. It's a dead secret. Two or three of my close friends let me in on it. I told my wife right away that I was going to find you before I started. Now, so long. My pack's hidden down the bank. In fact, when they told me they made me promise not to pull out until Dawson was asleep. You know what it means if you're seen with a stampeding outfit. Get your partner and follow. You ought to stake fourth or fifth claim from Discovery. Don't forget—Squaw creek. It's the third after you pass Swede creek."

When Smoke entered the little cabin on the hillside back of Dawson he heard a heavy, familiar breathing. "Aw, go to bed," Shorty mumbled as Smoke shook his shoulder.

"Kick into your clothes," Smoke said. "We've got to stake a couple of claims."

Shorty sat up and started to explode. "Sh!" Smoke warned. "It's a big strike. Squaw creek. Breck gave me the tip. Shallow bedrock. Gold from the grass roots down. Come on. We'll sling a couple of light packs together and pull out."

With small stampeding packs on their backs they closed the door behind them and started down the hill. Shorty dozed off a turn of the trail into deep snow and raised his voice in blessing of the date of the week and month and year.

"Can't you keep still?" Smoke chided. "You'll have all Dawson awake and after us."

"Huh! See the light in that cabin? An' in that one over there? An' hear that door slam? Oh, sure, Dawson's asleep! Them lights? Just burnin' their dead. They ain't stampedin'; tetcher life they ain't!"

By the time they reached the main street a hundred men were in line behind them, and while they sought in the deceptive starlight for the trail that dipped down the bank to the river more men could be heard arriving. Shorty slipped and shot down the thirty foot chute into the soft snow. Smoke followed, knocking him over as he was rising to his feet. The next moment they were scrambling wildly out of the way of the hurtling bodies of those that followed.

"It's a sure stampede," Shorty decided. "Or might all them be sleep walkers?"

"We're at the head of the procession at any rate," was Smoke's answer.

"Oh, I don't know! Maybe that's a pretty ahead there. Maybe they're all fireflies that one, an' that one. Look at 'em! Helieve me, they is a whole string of processions ahead."

It was a mile across the jams to the west bank of the Yukon, and candles flickered the full length of the twisting trail. Behind them—clear to the top of the bank they had descended—were more candles.

Smoke quickened and was soon at the rear of the nearest bunch of stampedeers. He counted eight men and two women in this party, and before the way across the jam ice was won, he and Shorty had passed another party twenty strong.

Within a few feet of the west bank the trail swerved to the south, emerging from the jam upon smooth ice. The ice, however, was buried under several feet of fine snow. Through this the sled trail ran, a narrow ribbon of packed footing barely two feet in width. On either side one sank to his knees and deeper in the snow. The stampedeers they overtook were reluctant to give way, and often Smoke and Shorty had to plunge into the deep snow and by supreme efforts flounder past.

The average pace of the stampedeers on the smooth going was three miles and a half an hour. Smoke and Shorty were doing four and a half, though sometimes they broke into short runs and went faster.

Half hour by half hour they alternated in setting pace. Nor did they talk much. Their exertions kept them warms, though their breath froze on their faces from lips to chin. So intense was the cold that they almost continually rubbed their noses and cheeks with their mittens.

Often they thought they had reached the lead, but always they overtook more stampedeers who had started before them. Occasionally groups of men attempted to swing in behind to their pace, but invariably they were discouraged after a mile or two and disappeared in the darkness to the rear.

"We've been out on trail all winter," was Shorty's comment, "an' them geezers, soft from layin' around their cabins, has the nerve to think they can keep our stride. Now, if they was real sour doughs it'd be different."

Once Smoke lighted a match and glanced at his watch. He never repeated it, for so quick was the bite of the frost on his bare hands that half an hour passed before they were again comfortable.

"Four o'clock," he said, as he pulled on his mittens, "and we've already passed 300."

"Three hundred and thirty-eight," Shorty corrected. "Get out the way, stranger. Let somebody stampede that knows how to stampede."

This latter was addressed to a man, evidently exhausted, who could no more than stumble along and who blocked the trail. This and one other were the only played out men they encountered, for they were very near to the head of the stampede. Nor did they learn till afterward the horrors of that night. Exhausted men sat down to rest by the way and called to get up again. Seven were frozen to death, while scores of amputations of toes, feet and fingers were performed in the Dawson hospitals on the survivors.

The other played out man they found a few minutes later sitting on a piece of ice beside the trail.

"Hop along, Sister Mary," Shorty gaily greeted him. "Keep movin'. If you sit there you'll freeze stiff."

The man made no response, and they stopped to investigate.

"See if he's breathing," Smoke said, as, with bare hand, he sought through furs and woollens for the man's heart.

Shorty lifted one ear flap and bent to the ice lips. "Nary breathe," he reported.

"Nor heartbeat," said Smoke. He mittened his hand and beat it violently for a minute before exposing it to the frost to strike a match.

It was an old man, incontestably dead. In the moment of illumination they saw a long gray beard massed with ice to the nose, cheeks that were white with frost and closed eyes with frost rimmed lashes frozen together.

"Come on," Shorty said, rubbing his ear. "We can't do nothin' for the old geezer."

A few minutes later, when a flaming ribbon spilled pulsating fire over the heavens, they saw on the ice a quarter of a mile ahead two forms. Beyond for a mile nothing moved.

"They're leadin' the procession," Smoke said as darkness fell again. "Come on, let's get them."

At the end of half an hour, not yet having overtaken the two in front, Shorty broke into a run. "If we catch 'em we'll never pass 'em," he panted. "Lord, what a pace they're hittin'! They're the real sour dough variety. You can stack on that."

Smoke was leading when they finally caught up, and he was glad to ease to a walk at their heels. Almost immediately he got the impression that the one nearer him was a woman. How this impression came he could not tell. Hooded and furred, the dark form was as any form, yet there was a haunting sense of familiarity about it. "How do you do, Miss Gastell?" Smoke addressed her.

"How do you do?" she answered with a turn of the head and a quick glance. "It's too dark to see. Who are you?"

"Smoke."

She laughed in the frost, and he was certain it was the prettiest laughter he had ever heard. "How many chekaks are there behind?"

"Several thousand, I imagine. We passed over 300."

"It's the old story," she said bitterly. "The newcomers get in on the rich creeks, and the old timers, who dared and suffered and made this country get nothing. Old timers made this discovery on Squaw creek—how it leaked out is the mystery—and they sent word up to all the old timers on Sea Lion But it's ten miles farther than Dawson, and when they arrive they'll find the creek staked to the sky line by the Dawson chekakos."

"It is too bad," Smoke sympathized. "But I'm hanged if I know what you are going to do about it."

"I wish I could do something," she flashed back at him. "I'd like to see them all freeze on the trail or have everything terrible happen to them, so long as the Sea Lion stampede arrived first. And now, if you'll forgive my tirade, I'll save my breath, for I don't know when you and all the rest may try to pass dad and me."

No further talk passed between Joy and Smoke for an hour or so, though he noticed that for a time she and her father talked in low tones.

"I know 'em now," Shorty told Smoke. "He's old Louis Gastell, an' the real goods. That must be his kid. He come into this country so long ago they ain't nobody can recollect, an' he brought the girl with him, she only a baby."

"I don't think we'll try to pass them," Smoke said. "We're at the head of the stampede, and there are only four of us."

Another hour of silence followed, during which they swung steadily along. At 7 o'clock the blackness was broken by a last display of the aurora borealis, which showed to the west a broad opening between snow clad mountains.

"Squaw creek!" Joy exclaimed.

"Goin' some," Shorty exclaimed.

It was at this point that the Dren trail, baffled by ice jams, swerved abruptly across the Yukon to the east bank. And here they must leave the hard packed, main traveled trail, mount the jams and follow a dim trail but slightly packed that hovered the west bank.

Louis Gastell, leading, slipped in the darkness on the rough ice and sat up, holding his ankle in both his hands. He struggled to his feet and went on, but at a slower pace and with a perceptible limp. After a few minutes he abruptly halted.

"It's no use," he said to his daughter.

ter. "I've sprained a tendon. You go ahead and stake for me as well as yourself."

"Can't we do something?" Smoke asked.

Louis Gastell shook his head. "She can stake two claims as well as one. I'll crawl over to the bank, start a fire and bandage my ankle. I'll be all right. Go on, Joy. Stake ours above the Discovery claim. It's richer higher up."

"Here's some birch bark," Smoke said, dividing his supply equally. "We'll take care of your daughter."

Louis Gastell laughed harshly. "Thank you just the same," he said. "But she can take care of herself. Follow her and watch her."

"Do you mind if I lead?" she asked. Smoke as she headed on. "I know this country better than you."

"Lead on," Smoke answered gallantly, "though I agree with you it's a darn shame all us chekakos are going to beat that Sea Lion bunch to it. Isn't there some way to shake them?"

She shook her head. "We can't hide our trail, and they'll follow it like sheep."

After a quarter of a mile she turned sharply to the west. Smoke noticed that they were going through unpacked snow, but neither he nor Shorty observed that the dim trail they had been on still led south. Had they witnessed the subsequent procedure of Louis Gastell the history of the Klondike would have been written differently, for they would have seen that old timer, no longer limping, running with his nose to the trail like a hound following them; also they would have seen him trample and widen the turn to the fresh trail they had made to the west, and finally they would have seen him keep on the old dim trail that still led south.

A trail did run up the creek, but so slight was it that they continually lost it in the darkness. After a quarter of an hour Joy Gastell was willing to drop to the rear and let the two men take turns in breaking a way through the snow. This slowness of the leaders enabled the whole stampede to catch up, and when daylight came at 9 o'clock the far back as they could see was an unbroken line of men. Joy's dark eyes sparkled at the sight.

"How long since we started up the creek?" she asked.

"Fully two hours," Smoke answered. "And two hours back make four," he laughed. "The stampede from Sea Lion is saved."

A faint suspicion crossed Smoke's mind. "I don't understand," he said. "You don't? Then I'll tell you. This is Norway creek. Squaw creek is the next to the south."

SENATOR BURKE ON CREW LAW

Railroad Men Think Former Conductor Made Poor Showing.

Pittsburgh, April 13.

Among railroad employees here the general impression is that Senator William J. Burke in his statement on behalf of the railroad trainmen, as handed to members of the Legislature on the Pull Crew—excess man crew—Law, did not make much of a case.

Particularly is it questioned what good for his side the former Baltimore & Ohio Railroad conductor could have expected from his attempt to ridicule Superintendent Phillips, of the Lackawanna Railroad, by quoting him as saying that that company had 75 per cent. grades. As a matter of fact, Mr. Phillips made no such statement, even as a slip of the tongue, but did refer to a grade of 78 feet to the mile which is not quite 1 1/2 per cent.

It is also pointed out that Senator Burke himself in questioning Mr. Phillips asked concerning operating conditions on such grade of 78 feet not of 75 per cent.

It is understood that Senator Burke will be one of the chief speakers to the retention of the Pull Crew Law when the Baldwin Bill shall reach the senate. Not a few are questioning whether he has not gotten out of touch with the practical operation of railroads since giving up even the one-day-a-year service, which for a long time kept him as an employee of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The above article is furnished by the railroads in their efforts for the repeal of the Pull Crew Bill.

AN EASY WAY TO END CATARRH FOREVER

Simple Home Treatment Destroys Germs of This Dangerous Disease.

The air is always full of catarrh germs thrown off by one person and absorbed by another and when your system fails to throw off such germs they find permanent lodgement in the nose, throat and head and multiply rapidly. You must kill these germs before you can cure catarrh.

The germs of catarrh can be best destroyed by inhaling the pure medicated air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei). This splendid and powerful combination of oil of Eucalyptus with other healing agents has a wonderful germicidal action. You breathe its air into your nose, throat and lungs by means of a small hard rubber inhaler which The People's Drug Store and other leading druggists here in Gettysburg and vicinity supply with every treatment. This medicated air is certain death to the germs of catarrh and drives them completely out of your system and when the germs are destroyed the catarrh with all its disagreeable symptoms will stop. As Hyomei is pleasant to breathe and is always sold by druggists everywhere with a positive guarantee of successful results or money back, surely no Catarrhal sufferer should go long before trying this simple home remedy.

Easy To Darken

Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so easily. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look Testing Precious Stones.

The science of optics has in the last year or so given much aid to jewelers in making tests that are said to be absolutely conclusive as to the nature of a gem. The refractive index, or the power of bending light rays, is determined as to precious stones in the same way as that of the spectacle lenses which the opticians sell.

That Also Be Thought Of.

She was leaving the city for home, and by way of making her departure pleasant for those who had served her gave a nickel to a chambermaid, saying, "Mary, you take a nice long car ride." The maid replied: "Yes, ma'am; thank you, ma'am, but how will I get back?"

The Aurora.

The Northern Lights, or Aurora Borealis, are caused by the flow of positive electricity, off from the earth, through the icy mists or clouds that float above the poles, toward the planetary spaces. There is a close causal connection between the aurora and the "sun spots."

SINKING OF SHIP AROUSES ITALY

Austria's Action Hotly Resented in Rome.

MAY PRECIPITATE CRISIS

King Victor Expected to Throw Down
Gage of War When Parliament Re-assembles on May 12.

Rome, April 15.—The tension between Austria and Italy, already near the breaking point, was still further strained by the news received from Milan that the Italian ship Irene has been sunk by an Austrian destroyer in the Adriatic while carrying a cargo of food to the Montenegrins.

Reports that Italy's entrance into the war on the side of the allies will be announced when parliament assembles on May 12 were generally credited, but the sinking of the Irene may precipitate the crisis.

The Italian foreign office ordered an investigation of the incident. If this determines that the Austrians were unjustified a demand for reparation and an explanation will be made at Vienna.

The Milan dispatch states that the Irene, a sailing vessel, was attacked and sunk at the mouth of the Boyana river, the navigable outlet of the Lake of Scutari. Her crew was rescued and landed on the Albanian coast.

Conflicting Rumors.

London, April 15.—Dispatches from Rome declare that, as a result of the long conferences between the king and Baron Sonnino, the foreign minister, and the secret councils held by the ministry, persistent rumors are afloat that Italy has at last decided to cast its lot with the allies and will enter the war next month.

The final announcement is expected when parliament convenes on May 12.
On the other hand, a semi-official statement denies that the question of intervention was discussed. Another rumor is that the government has decided to accept Prince von Bulow's supposed offer of the "Italian Provinces" now held by Austria.

Each rumor, of course, is in itself a direct denial of the other, but they at least go to show the highly nervous and speculative state of the public mind.

All army officers have been instructed by an order in the Military Journal to dull the metal on their uniforms and the scabbards of their swords.

The minister of war has announced that all public schools will be used to house troops in the event of mobilization and the municipal council has determined in such a contingency to continue the school terms in hired buildings.

In anticipation of mobilization it also has been decided that street cars and other public utilities, in so far as possible, shall be operated by women.

From Geneva comes a dispatch saying that Austrian officials still are detaining all freight cars belonging to Italian lines. The tension between Austrian and Italian frontier towns is increasing.

U. S. ARRESTS 77 ON LINER

Red Star Company Accused of Violating Alien Contract Labor Law.

New York, April 15.—Seventy-seven men and women, virtually the entire force of stewards and stewardesses aboard the American liner Kronland, were placed under arrest by immigration officers and a warrant was served on the captain.

The Red Star line, owners of the vessel, are charged with violation of the alien contract labor law.

Horse Racing Bill Defeated.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 15.—The senate defeated, 18 to 15, without debate, the Catlin bill, designed to regulate horse racing and "betting incidental thereto," and levying a tax of 10 per cent on the gambling receipts for the roads and hospitals.

Cold Spring, N. Y., April 15.—Mrs.
Jennie Chalmers has been awarded $600 for an involuntary bath alleged to have been received when Leon Reppie accidentally started his father's automobile and bumped Mrs.
Chalmers off a pier into chilly water.

The Weather.
Fair today and tomorrow;
easterly winds.

Rhubarb Custard.

One pint of sweetened and steamed rhubarb. Strain over this one-half ounce of gelatin, which has been previously dissolved in sufficient cold water to cover it. When cold stir in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and one-half pint of whipped cream; pour into a fancy mold and set away to harden. When ready to serve, turn out of the mold on to a fancy plate.

Tomato Pot Roast.

Buy a pot roast of beef and put it into the bean pot. Place it on top of the stove with a little cold water until it begins to boil. Pour one large can of tomatoes, well seasoned, over the whole, place the pot in a medium oven and cook for three hours. It needs very little watching and will be found extremely tender when eaten.

SPINACH IN MANY FORMS.

EASTER LUNCHEON MENU.
Potato Chowder. Rolls.

Tea.

BE sure and soak the spinach in cold water and remove all yellow leaves. Then clean it in five or six changes of water, or else in running water, until it is absolutely free from all dirt. Lift it from the last water into a saucepan and cover it;
cook it, stirring it now and then to keep it from burning. After fifteen minutes add salt and cook for five minutes longer. Then drain and prepare as desired. This method of cooking insures greenness and good flavor.
Enough of the water last used for washing the spinach clings to it to cook it, and it is not necessary to waste
the flavor by adding more water.

Spinach With Cream.

Chop the spinach fine after it is cooked and put it into a saucepan.
Add half a cupful of rich cream to half a peck of spinach. Season with salt and pepper, beat thoroughly and serve.

Spinach Croquettes.

Mix a cupful of cold boiled spinach with pepper and salt to taste, half a cupful of grated breadcrumbs, three hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine, and four tablespoonfuls of thick white sauce. Form into croquettes and bind with beaten egg and breadcrumbs.
Fry in hot fat and drain on paper for a moment; then serve with drawn butter sauce to which a hard-boiled egg, chopped fine, and a teaspoonful of finely minced parsley have been added.

Spinach on Toast.

Chop cooked spinach and heat it with salt, pepper and butter. Then put it in neat mounds on slices of thin, buttered toast, very hot, and serve with Hollandaise sauce or with drawn butter, egg sauce or white sauce.

Spinach Souffle.

Chop enough cooked spinach to measure a cupful. (This can be either freshly cooked or else cold left over spinach.) Beat an egg yolk, add and beat until the egg cooks. Cool; then add the stiff whites of three eggs and put the mixture into ramekins. Bake for ten or fifteen minutes and serve at once. This is a very dainty separate course at luncheon. It must be served the moment it is done or else it will fall.

BOX-PLEATED WAISTS RETURN.

The revival of the box-pleated waist affords many opportunities for the de-

With the revival of the full skirt

every material that enjoys fashionable

Naturally at this season tub effects are in greatest demand. The remark-

ATTACK MADE ON LEGISLATORS

Labor Leader Kurls Diatribe
After Visit to State Capitol.

Harrisburg, April 13.

Members of the State Legislature both Senators and Representatives are anything but pleased by the diatribe against their capacity and intelligence which appeared in "The Scrantonian," written by Steve McDonald, news editor of that paper and president of the Scranton Central Labor Union. In part, he says:

"There are many human beings in both houses who should be engaged in more useful work, and who are by nature better adapted for other work than making laws or assisting in the making of laws. Indeed, it would not be an unfair declaration to say that a good percentage of those who are now seated in the house of representatives are about as fit, mentally and otherwise, to fill the chairs they fill as a bull is to occupy the pedestal of honor in a china shop."

"The house is bad enough, the Lord knows, but the senate is a regular clatter box."

"There does not appear to be a desire on the part of any of the so-called representatives of the people to get down to real work. There is more attention paid to social events, hobnobbing with politicians and lobbysts, and making dates with other people."

"Spindle-shanked atoms strutted about the capitol as if they owned half the earth, and when they were approached by men working in the interests of the workers and wealth-producers of the state, these atoms swelled up with pride, placed their thumbs in their vest pockets—the upper pockets—and then rocked to and fro on their heels, while they took on that wise look that only ignorance can generate."

the railroads in their efforts for the repeal of the Pull Crew Bill.

The New Colors For Spring

The new colors for Spring are unusually interesting because they reflect to a certain degree American development.

Hitherto color ideas usually came from Paris and the dye stuffs from Germany.

While neither the import of color cards or dyes has been shut off—the output has been limited.

In some instances America has actually originated her own shades and made the dyes.

Thoughtful business men will see conspicuous develop-

Smart Originality of Design Expresses Parisian Influence in these Wooltex Tailored Coats and Suits

THE handsome suit shown in the picture is a Wooltex adaptation of a recently imported Doucet model and it is representative of many of the charming garments that we are now showing.

Wooltex designs always get their first inspiration in Paris. Even under the handicap of the great war in Europe, Madame Savarie, director of the Wooltex fashion bureau in Paris, paid her accustomed visit to the great Parisian designers with whom she has been familiar for so many years.

The suit illustrated has a 27-inch jacket with the new flare below a partial belt on each side of the jacket, where there is a slash, the open edges of which are trimmed with buttons and buttonholes.

The belt confining the jacket gives the new outline, suggesting a slightly smaller waist-line. There are clever coin pockets in the belt on each side; officer's military collar, overlaid with detachable white pique collar that gives a charming spring-like effect.

The skirt has a fashionable yoke with narrow front panel, finished with nine buttons and worked buttonholes at the top in front where the skirt closes. There is a slight fullness over the hips below a smooth-fitting yoke. Price of this suit, $25.00.

Many other styles in Wooltex suits at $25.00, $30.00 and $35.00.

Wooltex coats, $16.50, $20.00 and $25.00.

The Checkerboard Man

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

A stagecoach was bowling along over a road on "the plains," they being that portion of the continent lying between the Missouri river and the Rocky mountains. There were half a dozen passengers inside the coach, half of whom were ladies, and five men outside. Four of the outsiders were of the roughest element of the region, which in those days was not at all smooth. On the seat with the driver sat a man in a checkerboard suit.

The four men in his rear were talking in a vein not at all appropriate for the ears of ladies and so loudly that they could easily be heard in the coach below. The man in the checkerboard suit upon hearing a very coarse remark turned and looked at the man who made it, but said nothing.

"My young friend," said the man looked at, "do you see anything to admire in my appearance?"

"I don't see anything to admire in your language."

The man hitched a revolver around from his hip, saying, "What d'ye think o' that?"

"I have no use for firearms; never carry 'em myself."

The other clinched his fist. "What d'ye think o' that?"

"Oh, that's something I can understand. I carry those tools myself."

"Well, then, if you find anything more about me you don't like you'll get it behind the ear."

The checkerboard man made no reply to this, but when the other launched forth another coarse remark, accompanied by an oath, the former turned and said in a subdued voice:

"I say, my friend, you want to talk in a way that is unpleasant to my sensitive ears. We can't both have our own way. How would it do for us to stop the coach, get down and have a friendly set-to to settle the matter?"

"What! A little whippersnapper like you fight a six footer like me! I'd spoil your clothes."

"Oh, that won't matter. I can take them off above the waist."

"Go him, Jim," said one of the other men.

"Go him! Why, if I'd hit him real hard I might break him. He's too purty to be smashed like a piece o' chinee."

Jim's companions were anxious to see a fight and insisted upon his accepting the challenge. The coach was halted. The two principals walked a short distance from it, followed by most of the men inside and outside, while the driver remained on the box and the ladies crowded to the window.

The checkerboard man threw off his coat and vest, while his antagonist remained in woolen shirt and trousers tucked in his boots. One of the men relieved him of his revolver, while another drew a ring with the point of a dirk knife on the ground. When all was ready the principals started for the center of the ring.

The spectators were looking for the fight to begin when they were startled at seeing Jim lying on his back. His antagonist had planted his fist under Jim's jaw so quickly that ordinary eyesight was incapable of following the action. Jim sat up and looked about him, indicating that he scarcely understood what had happened. Then he rose to his feet, but before he could square himself on his legs he was down again.

He began to get riled and, jumping up with fair agility, went for his enemy like a bull, aiming a blow at his cheek. But his enemy was not there, and before Jim could aim another blow an arm was around his neck, and he was receiving a quick succession of taps on his nose, bringing a stream of blood, which trickled on the virgin soil of Colorado. He struggled desperately to free himself, but that crooked arm was like iron and was choking him. When both eyes were closed and his nose resembled a beet he was released and stood tottering and groping. One of his party went to him and led him back to the coach.

Every one understood what the fight was about, and all united in a shout of triumph. The conquered man was helped up on to the coach by his friends. The checkerboard man resumed his coat and vest and climbed to his seat by the driver. When all were aboard the driver chirruped to the horses and the coach rolled on. It had been stopped just seven minutes.

At the next relay was an eating house, where dinner was served. All left the coach and before dining gathered around the checkerboard man, offering him congratulations, the ladies of the party being especially complimentary in their remarks. The four men who had done the loud talking kept by themselves, but when the conqueror was granted a respite his victim shuffled up to him and put out his hand.

"Stranger," he said, "what did ye learn how to handle yer fists?"

"Oh, that's my profession. I run a school for boxing in Chicago."

"Y don't mean it?"

With that the fellow slunk away, and when the coach started up again neither he nor any of his friends was with it. They had received so many marks of disfavor from the passengers that they did not care to finish the journey with them. As for the checkerboard man, he had the satisfaction of being a hero for the rest of the ride, and at the parting every lady gave him some trinket as a memento of her gratitude.

Duke of the Abruzzi, Italian Naval Commander.

© by Pach.

Prince Louis Amedeo of Savoy, the Duke of the Abruzzi, who holds high command in the Italian navy, is likely to take a prominent part in the European imbroglio. Recently Italy mobilized a fleet of the most powerful ships in her navy and gave command to the duke.

The Duke of the Abruzzi is no stranger to America. He has been in this country on numerous occasions, and it is said that at one time he was a suitor for the hand of former Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of former Senator Elkins of West Virginia, now the wife of William R. Hitt, son of the late congressman from Illinois.

The duke is a cousin of the present king of Italy and is himself the son of a king. His father was elected to the throne of Spain in 1870 and ruled three years, when he resigned his scepter. The Duke of the Abruzzi was born at Madrid, in 1873, during his father's tenure of the throne of Spain. He was brought up in the Italian navy under the supervision of his uncle, the Duke of Genoa. Since then the Duke of the Abruzzi has visited every corner of the world, both as an explorer and an officer of the Italian navy. He has won fame both as an arctic explorer and as a climber of high mountains. Until Admiral Peary made his memorable dash across the Arctic, the record for the farthest north, having beaten Dr. Nansen. He has ascended some of the highest peaks in the Himalayas.

A Cake Baking Hint.

Raisins and currants have a habit of sinking to the bottom of a loaf of cake, no matter if they have been floured or some other means taken to prevent their doing so. At last, it is said, a way has been found which will make them stay where they ought to. Put the raisins and currants in a dish and set it on the back of the stove; stir them occasionally and see that they do not burn. When thoroughly heated add them to the batter.

Meat Rolls.

Sift two cupsful of flour twice with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one of salt and chop into this two tablespoonfuls of lard and one of butter. Moisten with milk (about one-half cup) and roll out one-half inch thick into oblong shape. Spread with chopped, cooked meat, well seasoned and moistened with stock. Roll up like jelly roll, brush over with milk and bake in moderate oven. Serve with tomato sauce.

Potato Cake.

Cream one cupful butter and two cupfuls sugar, add three or four eggs, one cupful mashed potatoes, one-half cupful milk, one-half cupful grated chocolate (or less), two and one-quarter cupfuls flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one teaspoonful cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg. Lastly add one cupful chopped walnuts or any other nut meats.

HOW LONDON SCOTTISH WON LAURELS IN WAR.

Had to Be Rescued After "Grand Stand" Rush, Officer Asserts.

No little concern is being caused in England by whispers of what is said to be the true story of the charge of the London Scottish on the German trenches at Ypres in Belgium.

This corps, which wears kilts, is the pride of London. It is the richest and most exclusive regiment of the old volunteer units that were formed into the territorial units after the Boer war, and it was given the distinction of being the first of the civilian units of the British army to be sent into action.

Sir John French spoke of their "gallant conduct" in his dispatches. An officer, who assisted in their rescue tells the following story:

"The London Scottish received orders to take a trench facing the position which they were occupying.

"The charge was made. A few of the London Scottish fell, but the regiment swept victoriously on to the German trench and put the Germans there to rout.

"Instead of holding the trench they captured, as ordered to do, they went for the next one, not realizing that they had taken only one end of the first trench. As soon as they rushed on the Germans in the other section of this trench moved into the captured part and opened a murderous fire from behind. The territorials were thus caught between two fires. Their 'grandstand' play brought them face to face with annihilation.

"At this juncture the Camerons and the Argyll and Sutherland highlanders were ordered to the rescue, and a bloody fight took place. The Camerons lost more men in that one action than in any other in the war. If you ask a member of that regiment what he thinks of the London Scottish you will be lucky if you escape with a drubbing."

MUSIC RESCUES LOST MIND.

Simple Experiment Saves Bandsman Insane Through Shell.

Bandsman A. G. Reynolds of the British Second Wiltshire regiment was buried in a trench at Ypres by the bursting of a shell. After thirteen hours his comrades dug him out, but his mind was gone.

After many medical experiments had failed a sheet of music was placed on his bed. After a few days Reynolds could read the notes quite correctly.

He read the music some days before he could understand the ordinary printing of the title page, but at last his mind was completely restored.

MAY COLLEGE GIRLS SMOKE?

English University Is Stunned by Startling Demand.

Should college girls smoke? That is the question which is agitating members of the upper classes in the women's colleges attached to Cambridge university, England.

A number of the girls who are accustomed to smoke at home have asked for a faculty ruling as to smoking in their dormitory rooms. The faculty, hard put to it for an answer, has decided upon a referendum, not of pupils, but of parents, and the principal has just dispatched a letter to each home asking for a reply for or against smoking.
